Governor Doyle Announces Additional Assistance for Dislocated Workers at Greenheck Fan, Schofield

Employment, training services for workers displaced due to foreign competition

MADISON – Governor Jim Doyle recently announced that workers displaced at the Greenheck Fan Corporation in Schofield are eligible to apply for additional re-employment and training services under the federal Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA) program.

“This additional assistance will help these workers increase their job skills and find new employment,” Governor Doyle said. “These employment and training services will help them re-enter the workforce and support themselves and their families.”

The workers produced air movement and control products. They were displaced as imports of similar products increased and Greenheck Fan’s sales decreased, according to a U.S. Department of Labor review of a request for TAA assistance.

The TAA certification applies to workers displaced as of September 8, 2008, through June 1, 2012, and it includes temporary workers from Adecco Employment Services, Randstad, ABR Corp., and Select Staffing. Affected workers will be notified of meetings to discuss program benefits.

The Wisconsin Department of Workforce Development (DWD) will administer the federally funded services, which are available through local Job Centers. They include retraining and re-employment services tailored to meet the needs of individual workers. These workers can now apply for the following TAA services:

- Training for employment in another job or career,
- Income support, known as trade readjustment allowances,
- Job search allowance to cover expenses seeking employment outside normal commuting areas, and
- Relocation allowances for approved relocation expenses in moving to a new area of employment.

“Working with our partners, we provide these services to displaced workers to help them get the training they need and connect with employers in search of workers with the right skills,” DWD Secretary Roberta Gassman said.

Last year, Governor Doyle announced that the U.S. Department of Labor expanded the amount of TAA funds available nationwide to $575 million from $220 million as part of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA). The additional funding will help states serve an increasing number of trade-affected workers. More information on the TAA program is available at <http://www.doleta.gov>.
